

< THE PULI HOTEL AND SPA, SHANGHAI

VIP floors with extra guest benefits have become commonplace among luxury hotels worldwide for years, but this urban retreat in Shanghai has launched a new spin on the concept by extending these benefits as an add-on to any one of the hotel's 193 rooms and 56 suites. Stay in the room category of your choice on any of the hotel's 26 floors and for a supplemental charge you can still like a VIP with privileges that include 24-hour butler service, unlimited ordering of selected food and beverage items at Long Bar, complimentary mini bar, laundry or pressing service, discounted spa treatments and more. You might say The Puli has taken VIP service to another level. Literally.

www.marriott.com/shanghai

< AZIAMENDI AT INIALA BEACH HOUSE, PHUKET

Run by Eniko Atxa, Spain's youngest ever three Michelin-starred chef, Aziamendi, located at Iniala Beach House in Phuket, is worth every bit of its hefty price tag. With canapés plucked straight from a bonsai tree, freshly squid down in frozen Japan and other exquisitely crafted dishes, your greed even does good as 5% of all revenues go to The Inspiration Foundation, which supports charities in the region.

aziamendi.com

> MAISON ES, HONG KONG

She's been dominating the city's private dining scene with Ta Pastry for a while now so it's only natural that the talented Esther Sham has finally opened her first fully-fledged, fine dining restaurant. Wanchai-based maison es serves up contemporary French fare with Asian-inspired flavours – a signature of the talented chef, it seems. Stand out main courses are the yuzu duck breast topped with a daikon salad or the sautéed scallops on spicy prawn rice with maple-marinated pork belly. Chab la la.

maison-es.com

